Young Sylv+ Jerry (Kinda continuing from last months light bondage request)

Ah...please-

You're gonna have to use your words, babe.

I ain't a mind reader.

Can... can you use your mouth?

I'd love to.

Like this?

Ah! For god's sake-

Fine. Here's some words.

I want your mouth,
around my junk,
without anything in the way.

I love her

OK so I've been avoiding putting Julien in sexual situations because he identifies as ace, and people's perception of ace is that they don't have sex EVER! But it's a really complex orientation + it varies a LOT.

Some people are sex repulsed or indifferent, some people make compromises for their partners sake, and it's different from arousal, so here's a snippet from <http://www.whatisasexuality.com/intro/>

Asexuality is a sexual orientation, like homosexuality or heterosexuality. And like being straight or being gay, it's about what someone feels, not what someone does. Dating, having sex, masturbating, falling in love, getting married, or having children do not conflict with asexuality in any way. There are many reasons why an asexual person might do these things that do not require sexual attraction to be present.

Experiencing arousal or orgasm also do not conflict with asexuality.

I'm still not entirely sure where Julien sits, but I think he would have sex occasionally, later in their relationship? I'd say he's more on the indifferent side of the spectrum but being in a relationship with two sexual people would leave him feeling like he was missing out on some intimacy. I do think it'd be pretty infrequent and I think I'll still try to focus on how it's different + him working out his boundaries etc? But yeah I guess here's today's lesson... XD.

(I'm ace also! I'd personally describe sex as like...being invited to watch a movie when you weren't really planning on doing that? Like...it'll probably be a good movie but you weren't fussed about seeing it XD?)

J-Jul- if you keep on moving like that I'm going to come-

That's ok-

mh...me too-

But I-
I thought-

This feels different...I don't know...
